

a desire for deco

A comfortable and inviting environment with a timeless atmosphere perfects this classical-style home

058:Feature Home

Interior designer Noela Coffey, of Mageia Design, introduced an art-deco flavour to this home's interior. The initial effect was created with a console and bronze lady in the entry area and a deco table in faux wenge and stone. Three deco ladies, a commissioned piece, adorn the stairwell wall and invite one to climb the stairs. The staircase was custom-made and crafted from raw stainless steel in an intricate pattern. It was important that the entertaining areas be open plan to accommodate the owners' lifestyle.

In the formal lounge and dining areas, Art Deco-style lounges and chairs are upholstered in raw silks and chenilles in a combination of earthy tones. Neutral shades form a backdrop for the rooms — Dulux Sandman for the walls and ceilings, with Café Latte and Father of Pearl feature walls. These shades combine beautifully with the colours selected for the furnishings: mint green chairs, coffee-coloured lounges and orange cushions, as well as coffee-coloured dining chairs. Natural limestone was used throughout on all flooring as a neutral palette, contrasted by the warm earthy colours. Two rugs with mint-green trim are set against the natural flooring. Emphasis was given to the ceiling design, creating a floating effect using large shadow line details and perimeter fibre optics. Downlights used in a grid and linear system complement the tailored design. In the kitchen against the breakfast bar, rattan furniture is upholstered in vibrant lime macro suede, adding to the subtle touches of green found throughout the interior. The bedrooms are located on the upper level for ultimate privacy. The master bedroom is designed as a sumptuous retreat, with chenille and silk fabrics on the bed and daybed. A French Aubusson-style rug forms the room's centrepiece. Shutters reflect the shape of the windows and maximise their size without adding clutter.

The home's exterior is a blend of stone render and sandstone. Complete with simple, tailored landscaping, it exemplifies the Renaissance style, which the owners adore.
